PAVING THE WAY FOR CITY GROWTH

On March 8, 1918, a story appeared in this paper under the caption "Daly City's Splendid Streets." Particular attention was called to the perfectly paved streets of the Vista Grande district, and the completion of the Mission Street State Highway. It was indicated that Daly City had made a great stride towards the front as a city of enterprise. The fine work which elicited this comment has been perpetuated throughout the fourteen years intervening. It would almost appear that the citizens and their representatives had set for themselves a goal—the banishment of unpaved streets from their city.

If the achievements of 1918 caused pride and admiration, what shall be said of the situation which exists here today? The paving of a city is a big undertaking which involves vast expense and skilfull handling. The job could not be put through in one transaction. Not only was the matter of ways and means to be considered, but there were sundry irritating obstacles and objections to be removed. Section by section, street after street, the great project was pursued; the Hillcrest Tract, the West End, and the whole Crocker Tract were swept into the great paving march.

Some few years have elapsed since the Daly City Council found itself with not a single street or thoroughfare left to pave. From the city's northern entrance to the Jefferson high school grounds, pleasant streets and inviting avenues revealed a perspective of orderly and paved cleanliness. Not a dirt road remained to spoil the prospect, and like Alexander of old our enterprising Councilmen were compelled to seek new worlds of endeavor to conquer. It is true that within our wider city limits there still remain some few streets which have not been paved. These were included in that territory recently admitted to our municipality. There is no doubt that at the proper time and with their usual promptness our City Councilmen will deal with this question.

As the paving situation stands at present, there are few cities which can compare with Daly City. For many years our leadership in this regard has been recognized throughout the state. We have set a good example to other cities, whose difficulties were probably not so serious as our own. In earlier days there were some who prophesied that the thing could not be done, or at least that it could not be done for many years to come. Fortunately the problems of the city lay in the hands of men who didn't know the meaning of the word "failure." They tackled the job that couldn't be done and, before we had time to turn round, they had completed it.

As a result of the comprehensive paving achievements of a progressive Council, we are now able to boast of a clean, attractive and thoroughly sanitary city. Clean streets help to make clean homes, and clean homes make for health. The vital statistics of our city emphatically support this eulogy of paving. The cleanliness of our streets is maintained by the use of thoroughly modern motor equipment, recently purchased by the city.

In addition to the outstanding advantages of cleanliness, paved streets offer comfort and safety in travel. Our volunteer fire department will bear eloquent testimony to this latter benefit. They are able to proceed swiftly and smoothly to any part of the city when the fire menace summons them.

The present City Council has written many stirring chapters of brilliant achievement in the story of Daly City. The somewhat prosaic history of progress in asphalt and cement has been touched upon on this occasion. Other chapters of accomplishment will receive attention in their turn. The object of this story and others that may follow is to reveal the vast possibilities of progress when city officials enjoy the sympathy and support of a progressive electorate. The men we have chosen to represent us know their city and its needs. They have made various plans for its development; many of these have been completed, others are now in progress. In unity and with sincere determination these men are lifting Daly City to a place of prominence among the municipalities of the nation.

Our present city government is as nearly perfect as any human organization can hope to be. Within a few weeks two members of the Council will round out successful terms. Both have contributed generously to the harmony and success of the Council—Henry Sundermann for twelve years and Arthur Bodien for eight years. Their prolonged and distinguished record in city affairs will bear its own message to those whose votes have kept them so long in office. Their re-election will pave the way to greater developments in the advance of Daly City.

LEADERS DISCUSS SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The District Council, Boy Scouts of America, held their regular meeting Wednesday evening, January 27, at the City Hall. City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, chairman of the Council, presided.

Many city officials and prominent citizens were present at this meeting, and signified their intention of joining the District Council. Among those who attended were Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilmen Henry Sundermann, Julius Twesten and Arthur J. Dalton, and Chief of Police John T. Doyle.

A report was made by District Commissioner L. W. Johnston on the fifteenth annual dinner of the San Francisco Area Council, B. S. A., held in the Gold Room of the Fairmount Hotel, Tuesday evening, January 26.

General discussion on the program of Scout activities for this district during the coming year occupied the major portion of the meeting. Many helpful suggestions were offered by Superintendent of Schools R. L. Crane, who has a practical knowledge of the Scout movement, gained through his many years' experience as a Scout executive.

New Troop No. 143 of Boy Scouts has been registered and sponsored by the City Council. On this Troop commttee are Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilmen Henry Sundermann and Julius Twesten, and District Superintendent of Schools R. L. Crane. With such sponsorship, this new troop should prove to be one of the outstanding units in this area.

An advisory board was formed by Councilman Arthur J. Bodien, which is composed of Mayor H. H. Smith, District Superintendent of Schools R. L. Crane, District Commissioner L. W. Johnston, Councilman Bodien, and H. A. McHugh, secretary.

In the future the District Council will meet once each month, and has selected the third Wednesday of every month as their meeting night. The next regular meeting will take place in the City Hall on Wednesday evening, February 17.

On the evening of February 8, next Monday, a huge rally will be staged at the Balboa high school, in conjunction with District No. 8. The dramatization of George Washington's dream at Valley Forge will be presented by a cast of well trained actors in commemoration of the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birthday. The talent is composed of members of various Troops within the San Francisco area, and an interesting program has been planned by the committee. The public is invited to attend, and a large delegation from Daly City is expected to be present. Remember the date, February 8, at 8 P. M. at the auditorium, Balboa high school, Onondaga avenue and Cayuga street.

FATHERS' NIGHT AT PERSHING P. T. A.

The members of the General Pershing P. T. A. held their Fathers' Night and Founders' Day celebration last Tuesday evening in the school building, with Mrs. E. C. Boyle, the president, presiding.

Judge George J. Steiger, of the San Francisco municipal court, was the guest speaker. Judge Steiger is the only judge in the United States who is also the vice-president of a Parent-Teachers' Association. He gave a very interesting talk to the fathers on their responsibilities as fathers, and urged them to taken an interest in the work and to join the loclal units. Judge Seeiger is also interested in the Boy Scout movement and said very few men brought into his court had ever had the advantages given the boys by this wonderful organization.

Following Judge Steiger's address a program was given by the children, consisting of songs, recitations and dances. The children on the program were Patsy O'Neil, Charlotte Hughes, La Verne Hering, Lois Hering, Madeline Dannenberg, Rudolph Panol and Priscilla Watson.

Following the entertainment there was a candle-lighting ceremony in honor of Mrs. Alice Bierney and Mrs. Phobe A. Hearst, co-founders of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. This candle was called a memory candle, there being a candle for the national, one for the teachers, and one for the local unit, which was lighted by the local president, Mrs. E. C. Boyle.

The beautiful birthday cake was made by Mrs. Margaret Callan Steele, a member of the General Pershing unit.

Mrs. G. I. Woodside, president of the Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A., read an appropriate article on Founders' Day during the candle-lighting ceremony.

Mr. R. L. Crane, district superintendent of schools, addressed the group, and thanked the members of the unit for their gift of a motion picture projector, of which he demonstrated the workings, and told what visual education means to the child of today.

At the conclusion of the program delicious refreshments were served, and the beautiful birthday cake was cut and served by Mrs. E. Byrne, the Founders' Day chairman, and her committee.

TRAINING BEGINS FOR SPRING MEET

Training has begun at Tanforan for the spring meeting. After a let-up following the conclusion of the winter session of sport, the conditioners of the five hundred thoroughbreds at the course are beginning to give their horses preliminary exercise. The objective is to have all of the runners at the height of form in the days just prior to the opening.

After a "spell," as the Australians call a rest, the galloper is brought up to racing condition by easy stages. Jogging does at first. A little later come the stiff "works" to improve the wind and make the flesh hard. Even after a careful period of training only a highly capable handler can pronounce a horse ready for the fray.

In these days of the stall gate much time must be given to the schooling of the thoroughbreds in the modern contrivance. Under the old system of starting from the barrier the animals were more or less in motion when the break came. Nowadays they must learn to get going early after breaking flatfooted, or nearly so.

Two year olds will require even more schooling than the older horses, as they have never been to the races. When the education of the young ones has progressed somewhat under the tutelage of their trainers they will be turned over to starter Harry Morrissey. Close observers predict that the "Commencer" will have the babies so accustomed to the stalls by the time opening day rolls around that they will not be at any disadvantage in meeting two year olds from Agua Caliente, which have been racing since early last month.

Broodmares of fashionable lineage are being sent to the court of Xenofol over at Heather Farm. This is the first season of the well bred stallion. Xenofol is by the successful sire Negofol of the St. Simon line and it may be he will carry on in a manner to delight both Walter Dupee and John W. Marchbank. Daughters of King Heather and other matrons of well established strain will be mated with Xenofol.

The distance of the Governor Rolph handicap, which was six furlongs at its first running, will be one mile and an eighth at its renewal. The fans are strong in favor of the change, as they like to see the start of a race on the front stretch. Last April, on being informed the event named in his honor was to have its beginning on the back stretch, the Governor exclaimed:

"What, my race is to start way over there!"

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES OF INTEREST

The school children of the district were treated to just a taste of snow on Monday of this week. Most of the downfall, however, was hail, but it stayed long enough so that everyone had a chance to have a good fight. The teachers were lenient and allowed the children the novelty of getting into it.

Mrs. Ethel Hahn, of Daly City, has been appointed as regular teacher of the High Sixth grade at Woodrow Wilson for this year.

Our manual training room at Woodrow Wilson, which serves the entire district, has been enlarged to over triple it former size. Lockers for the different classes have been built and two boys are assigned to check out the special tools. The tops of the desks, which have become scarred and battered with years of usage, are being reversed. When all plans have been completed, we shall have a modern and up to date manual training shop.

Friday, January 28, the Colma basketball team was defeated by Lomita Park boys. Mr. Mathews reports a fine, clean game, and splendid sportsmanship. The Colma boys lost the first quarter as they were a little under playing form and showed ragged guarding. They came up in the last half and outplayed Lomita Park, but the final score stood 16 to 9 in favor of Lomita Park. Mr. Mathews refereed the first haif, and Mr. Funge the second half.

Walking instead of marching has lessened the time in entering the class rooms at Vista Grande. The children are responding quickly to the first bell, which stops all play, and walking into the building at sound of the whistle. With the teachers supervising the corridors, all pass quickly and quietly to their rooms.

About two hundred boys and girls of the Crocker school were weighed by Mrs. Lohr on Thursday, January 28. This weighing is a part of the health service carried on by the school.

On Tuesday, February 2, the General Pershing Parent-Teachers' Association held an entertainment in honor of Founders' Day. Every one had a wonderful time. Mrs. Byrne and her committee worked very hard to make it a success. Refreshments were served and every one went away feeling that the meeting was a success.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A group of friends gathered at the home of Miss Charlotte Caldwell, of Irvington street, last Tuesday night at 9 o'clock and gave her a surprise party in celebration of her birthday. The honored guest received many beautiful gifts. A very pleasant evening was spent in playing indoor games and in dancing. At midnight dainty refreshments were served at an artistically decorated table, the centerpiece of which was a lovely black glass vase containing two dozen beautiful roses, this also being among the birthday gifts. The guests were Beatrice Jago, Betty Saame, Sylvia Evans, Drusilla Felsch, Grace Hill, Eleanor Lore, Mr. and Mrs. F. Weigmuller, Mr. E. Weigmuller, Harvey Robinson, Max Edwards, William Irwin, Bernard Seglao, Carl Majesky, Bert Edwards and Herbert Odergaard.

BOARD CONSIDERS JURY SUGGESTIONS

Thorough investigation of the recommendations made by the San Mateo county grand jury will be undertaken by the board of supervisors, it was decided last Monday at the meeting of the board in Redwood City. Dr. A. V. Thompson, Burlingame supervisor, offered a motion asking for a committee to look into the grand jury's recommendations and report back to the board.

As the result of Dr. Thompson's motion, Chairman Manuel Francis named the whole board as a committee to consider the grand jury's suggestions. County Surveyor James S. James, who submitted a report to the board and the grand jury, urging a unified road system, was delegated to co-operate with the supervisors in their investigation, at the request of Dr. Thompson.

James appeared before the board and pointed out the economic disadvantage of the present five-district road system. He urged that the board unify the road work of the county and name a road superintendent to supervise it. The county surveyor said the county could save $100,000 next year if the supervisors would adopt a unified system and a definite plan of construction.

Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey took issue with the grand jury's report, in which it was intimated that the present system was highly extravagant and the county was not getting a justified return on the money invested in road work. Hickey said that everyone out of a job was seeking work on some supervisorial road gang, and that the public was urging that supervisors provide work. He pointed out that jobs could not be created for all those seeking them, if there was to be strict economy.

James reported that $363 expended on the preliminary survey of a Capuchino Manor public improvement project had never been restored to the county, despite the fact a bond had been filed insuring its return, in case the project fell through, which it did. At the request of Hickey the matter was referred to District Attorney Edmund Scott for action.

TREE PLANTING EXERCISES AT PUMP-HOUSE GROUNDS

Last Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock the membership of Balboa ward, L. D. S. Relief Society, in cooperation with Daly City officials, planted a California redwood tree on the pump-house grounds located at Citrus and Niantic avenues.

There was a short program consisting of community singing of "America, the Beautiful," and a short address by A. E. White on the significance of tree planting. Councilman A. J. Bodien thanked the group on behalf of Daly City for having chosen that section in which to plant their tree.

After the speaker concluded his remarks the beautiful tree was planted, each of the twelve women present throwing in a shovelfull of dirt.

Bishop Pearson, the next speaker to address the group, spoke on the life of George Washington. A delegation of Cubs attended the ceremonies.

The ceremonies ended with the singing of "America" by those present. At some later date this tree will be transplanted and put in the park. The dedicatory ceremony will take place on George Washington's birthday, the exact time to be announced later.

LOCAL EAGLES TO ENTERTAIN LADIES

On Saturday evening, February 6, the quarterly Ladies' Night, for the members and friends of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Daly City Local No. 1848, will be held in the Daly City auditorium. A twelve piece orchestra will provide the music and a good time is assured to all that attend.

Owing to the large crowds that attend these affairs, the local Eagles have made arrangements to hold their dance in the City Hall. You are invited to be present and enjoy yourself with the Eagles, who have a reputation as entertaining hosts.

On Thursday, January 28, the Associated Aerie of San Mateo county met with the local Aerie in Daly City. An attendance of some two hundred was recorded, The Redwood City Aerie brought along the Redwood City Fire Department band, consisting of eight pieces. The Daly City band of thirty-four pieces was also present. Some very good music was rendered by these organizations. Intresting speakers were present, and a banquet was one of the features of a most interesting evening.

FACULTY SKIT AND FOOTBALL DINNER

(By HUBERT CAPPS)

Before a special student meeting t the close of school Friday afternoon, the Jefferson Union high school faculty basketball team was presented gold basketballs as emblems of their having won the school basketball championship.

One of the cleverest presentation speeches ever made in the high school auditorium was delivered by the popular principal of the school, James Ferguson, who presented the balls.

Starting his speech in a serious vein, Mr. Ferguson referred to the historical background of the Olympic games to be held in Los Angeles next summer, and spoke of the honor that was attached to the winning of an athletic contest in ancient Greece. The prize has no intrinsic value, he said, because it was only a wreath placed on the brow of the winner. But the great honor was in winning. The contestants competed as individuals, as in present field and track events.

He then told of the honors won today in team contests—football, basketball, and baseball—enumerating college championships, and state and even national championships, sometimes accompanied by personal trophies to the individual members of the teams.

Then he told of the basketball game between the faculty five and the 110 pound team of Jefferson, which was played on the campus last week, and resulted in victory for the faculty five. "This is an honor," he said, "that makes the members of the team, and indeed, the whole faculty swell with pride." And then, as he announced with stentorian voice: "Faculty and Students: Behold your Champions," the stage curtain was drawn aside, and the faculty five stood in all their dignity with swollen chests and heads erect. Coach B. I. gave it away. His face wore a broad grin. And the students caught on. The principal and the faculty were putting on a real skit for their amusement.

Holding up the basketballs, Mr. Ferguson said: "These trophies glitter like ordinary gold, but they are not ordinary trophies. They were not purchased out of student funds, nor from money raised by public subscriptions. They were not purchased in an ordinary trophy shop. Champions such as ours would scorn anything so common. These trophies were purchased in the largest store in the largest city in the world—Woolworth's Five and a Dime in New York City, and paid for by the champions themselves."

Mr. Ferguson had his speech so perfected and so well timed, and he delivered it with such a sincere air, that it fairly stunned the students, who really expected to be lectured for misconduct of some sort or another. When the students found out that it was actually "James" who was addressing them, instead of their dignified principal, they broke out time and again with a bedlam of cheers, laughs and general applause.

After his "stirring" speech, Mr. Ferguson called the members of the faculty forward on the stage. Coach "Mass o' Muscles" Biaggini was introduced first. He was a striking figure, with his face so red it blended perfectly with his flaming red sweater. In fact, the only way you could tell it was "B. I." was that a fringe of silken black whiskers topped the figure on the stage.

Next Mr. Ferguson presented "Tiny Morris," the center. Mr. Morris is a diminutive fellow, being only 6 feet, 2 inches in height. He was the exact opposite of the blushing Coach Biaggini. He had to be dragged from the stage after it was all over, because he liked so well the applause of the students and the Principal's commendations.

Then Mr. Ferguson introduced Mr. Gray, Mr. Quirmbach, and Mr. Hackley, the married men of the team. "Your children, and children's child-

$25,000 MORE FOR STREET WIDENING

An additional $25,000 for the elimination of the Daly City bottleneck was pledged last Friday by the State Highway Commission.

The plea for additional funds so that the new highway could be eight feet wider from the top of the hill to Colma, and five and one-half feet wider from Wellington avenue to the county line than had been originally planned was made by Mayor H. H. Smith and Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, who went to Sacramento and appeared before the Commission.

San Francisco has pledged $200,000 for the project, and the state had previously pledged $200,000, and forty feet of pavement for the full length of the widening.

San Fernando Valley is expecting a "comeback" in the wholesale growing of sugar beets this summer. Last season only about 600 acres were planted. Ten or a dozen years ago the sugar beet crop was the largest and most profitable, and each year's harvest was gathered from several thousand acres. Gradually the growing of lima beans took the place of beets. It is now stated that at least 2000 acres will be planted to sugar beets in the valley this spring, and large tracts are being prepared for the plantings. All beets are shipped to the sugar beet mill at Oxnard.

All of the good farming land in Mc Farland community is being leased this year, quite as in other years, and much of it will be put into cotton in spite of discouraging current prices. "Cotton is as good as anything, and the price won't stay down forever," seems to be the view of many ranchers. A good deal of land is being leased for watermelons and some for cantaloupes, while the growing of truck crops, such as lettuce, beans and peas, on small acreages, is increasing, since it has paid well for some years.

Monterey cypress trees transplanted in various parts of California are doomed, according to State Forester Pratt, by beetles and cankerous growth experts have been unable to overcome. Pratt and Prof. Woodbridge Metcalf of the University of California Forestry Extension service have agreed that cypress trees of this species growing in San Joaquin Valley and along the coast, except on the Monterey peninsula, are being depleted by pests and disease and will have to be replaced by a hardier stock of windbreaks. For some reason or other, the officials said, the cypress trees on the Monterey peninsula, the area of origin, have not suffered from the canker disease and pests nearly as much as those transplanted.

During recent years fewer and fewer California boys and girls have gone home from school with the sad news of failing to be promoted to the next grade, school authorities say. And at the same time, the number of pupils allowed to skip grades, or complete work in less than normal time, has decreased. As stated by Claire F. Muncy, Department of Education statistician, "the tendency in California schools in recent years is to promote pupils in accordance with their age. The problem of keeping children progressing through school at a normal rate is an old one, Muncy said, but only in recent years has it been attacked seriously. When it comes to skipping grades, girls are somewhat ahead of the boys, the figures show. Two per cent of the girls in the elementary schools each year go ahead of their regular classes, while only 1.8 per cent of the boys make such rapid progress. And at the same time, more boys are required to repeat grades, 8.4 per cent failing to pass, as compared with 6 per cent of the girls.

California incomes subject to Federal income taxes suffered relatively slight curtailment during 1931, as compared to the decline revealed in many other States This was revealed in dispatches from Washington, D. C., summarizing a Treasury Department report on internal revenue collections. Income tax payments in California during 1931, the report showed, declined only 30 per cent as compared with 1930, while in some other populous States the drop was 50 per cent, and in less heavily populated States reached 60 per cent.

"HE WAS BORN LEGENDARY"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON FEBRUARY 22 America will begin a nation-wide celebration honoring the memory of the greatest American. For February 22 is the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington and, as a result of plans which have been in preparation for several years, the observance of this bicentennial will be the most extensive ever held in this country. But the ceremonies on February 22 are only the beginning of a series of patriotic pilgrimages pageants, programs, dedication of memorials and other forms of celebration which will be held until Thanksgiving day, all having as their purpose a "reawakening in the hearts of all Americans of an appreciation for the character and the life of America's greatest citizen."

In addition to these celebrations, the name of George Washington will be kept daily before his countrymen in other ways. Every time they mail a letter or a parcel they will see his face, for a series of 12 commemorative postage stamps, ranging in denomination from one-half cent to ten cents have been issued, each one bearing a likeness of Washington. In their pockets will jingle a new 25-cent silver coin which will bear the face of Washington on the obverse. This new quarter is not a "special issue" merely to mark the Washington bicentennial but it will replace the 25-cent piece now in general circulation.

The year is certain to bring forth also new books about Washington in which new attempts will be made to interpret Washington in his various roles as a soldier, as a business leader, as a statesman, as a President and as a man. In view of this fact, it is pertinent to raise the question, "Considering the amount that has already been written about Washington, is there anything new that can be said about him?" Offhand, the answer would probably be "No!" Yet the fact remains that something new has been said about him and that in a recently published biography. It is "George Washington, Republican Aristocrat," written by Bernard Fay and published by the Houghton Mifflin company, and this book is important, not only because of the interpretation of Washington as a "Republican aristocrat" but because his interpreter is not a fellow-countryman but a foreigner, a Frenchman, therefore a man whose judgments are less likely to be obscured by partisanship one way or the other.

It is doubtful if there has yet been written such an adequate and understanding summary of the greatness of George Washington—without indulging in extravagant language—as the admirable essay which forms the introduction to M. Fay's book.

Those who believe in the hand of God in the affairs of man will indorse the idea set forth in this introduction that George Washington came on the stage of history at the precise moment he was most needed. It was the Eighteenth century when all looked forward with joy to the arrival of an "enlightened despot."

"He was a gentleman. He was rich. He was a soldier. There was nothing of the revolutionary about him. And, for the first time, in more than fifteen centuries, he exemplified the type of hero who declined supreme power and wished to command only to serve. The world did not expect this; and it surprised the upper classes more than any other attitude would have done. And throughout the entire world the conservative classes, the middle classes, the enlightened nobility, and the people who, even though most cautious, were desirous of change, beheld the serene, great man with an astonishment which soon turned to enthusiasm. Washington accomplished, by the legend which so immediately surrounded him, more than anyone else had done. By his personality he prepared the extremists and the traditionalists to accept democratic ideas."

"There was nothing of the revolutionary about him." So it is all the more remarkable that this Virginia gentleman, this land-holding aristocrat, should engage in a struggle in behalf of the common people in which he had everything to lose and but little to gain. If he could have foreseen that he would have to carry on that struggle almost single-handed and then after it was won that he would be reviled by those whom he had served so well and for whom he had suffered so much, one wonders if he would have engaged in it.

For like all great men—even more so than most—he was a lonely man—a lonely man, both in private life and in public office. Throughout his life he carried on his heart the burden of an unrequited love, his love for Sally Cary, who married his best friend and neighbor, George Fairfax. Even when he married "the Widow Custis" he was still a lonely man. While he was busy building up the estate at Mount Vernon, according to M. Fay, "He noted in his diary sometimes during a whole week that he had remained at home alone—although Martha Washington was living under the same roof and in the same house."

But this was as nothing to the loneliness that was to come to him during the dark hours of the Revolution when he was trying to keep together the wretched little army which congress had given him for winning the independence of the new nation—and then gave him nothing more, certainly not enough supplies or even moral support for carrying on his almost insuperable task. Even when he had been successful, when the new nation had rewarded him with the highest honor in its power by making him its first President, he was also the first to discover what every President since then has learned—that the Presidency is a lonely job, wherein the occupant of that position never knows whom to trust. For no sooner was he made President than he found himself traveling a lonely path between two opposing political ideals—the monarchial tendencies of the Federalists and the democratic theories of the Republicans.

So he followed his lonely course to the end.

Not that it matters now, but a columnist brings it up that John Masefield, Englands' poet laureate, once tended bar in a saloon near Jefferson Market in New York.

Several New York office holders saved 20 times the amout of their salaries. Still, some folks doubt the story of the loaves and fishes.

WAR BEING WAGED ON ILLEGAL HEADLIGHTS

Results of twenty days special enforcement aimed at illegal headlights has been made public by the California Highway Patrol, showing 37,661 citations were issued for the period.

The work was state-wide in character, including not only the regular county squads, but special squads as well. It was done under the general direction of E. Raymond Cato, chief of the patrol.

The mass of citations were issued to persons driving with glaring headlights or with only one light, these offenses taking up 26,053 of the total.

For especially flagrant violations arrest citations were issued. In a great number of cases, however, the warning or non-arrest card was issued which relieved the motorist of appearing in court whenever, after having been stopped, he had had his lights adjusted and had reported back to the patrol.

Commenting on the results, Chief Cato declared conclusive proof had been discovered of the advantages of frequent voluntary check-ups by the motorists of his lights. He said:

"Motorists who make a practice of having their lights adjusted frequently are seldom stopped by our officers.

"Only a small percentage of those stopped were able to show they had ever had any adjustments made to their headlights.

"Knowing this, it may be our policy in future to give warning cards to those who are able to produce certificates of adjustment, and arrest citations to those who do not have such certificates.

"The car owner has only to give a little attention to his lights to give him adequate and safe illumination on the highways.

"Illegal lights unquestionably cause many serious accidents. Headlight work is a permanent and continuous feature of our enforcement program."

Citations issued during the period were divided as follows: One headlight out, 7,628; glaring lights, 17,780; inadequate lights, 645; rear light out, 6,727; rear lights defective, 431; clearance lights, 618; auxiliary lights, 524; spotlights, 325; illegal colored lights, 325; miscellaneous, 4,450.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

C. G. Roseberry, editor of the Shawnee, Oklahoma, News, says:

That in a recent survey by a certain great newspaper to determine the features which had the greatest reader interest, it was found that advertising ranked near the top.

People are evidently interested in supplying as many of their wants as possible with the least outlay of money. To do so they read advertisements religiously.

The most important thing business can do to hasten good times is to go forward with a full head of steam into an advertising campaign that will be extensive enough to to inspire confidence. Hoarded money and timid money must find its way into the channels of business and a sufficient volume of advertising will turn the trick.

Money, the product of brain and muscle, is truly the life blood of the nation. Its rebuilding and renewing power is possible only when it is in circulation. Hoarded by individuals and congested in great banking institutions, it is as uselss as clots of blood are to a sick man who needs his tissues bathed and healed by warm and liquid blood. Advertising is the best cure for congestion and coagulation.

BRAKE TESTING STATIONS MUST SECURE NEW PERMITS

In order to clear the records of obsolete addresses and possible errors and bring them up to date, E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol, has announced the cancellation of all outstanding permits for brake and light testing stations.

There are about 1,200 light testing stations and 1,400 brake testing stations operating under permits by the state over a period of several years.

The notice of revocation, together with an application for renewal of the permit, has been forwarded to each station and new permits will be issued all who fill out the applications, Cato said.

Failure to return the applications will be construed as a desire to discontinue as an official testing station.

CUT GOVERNMENT COSTS

Perhaps chief of our present difficulties is the mounting cost of government. President Hoover is everlastingly right in his appeal for non-partisan co-operation in the cutting down of governmental expenditures. The depression cannot be cured by increasing governmental debts in order to get temporary relief in the present crisis. Suffering of individuals must be and will be relieved, not by Federal expenditures, which should not be made at this time but by individual and local contribution and sacrifice in accord with the old traditions of the neighborhood spirit in America.—New York Herald-Tribune.

ren," he said, "will have handed down to them these trophies won by the valor of a lion-hearted ancestor, and cherished for each succeeding generation as proof that one of its forebears was unafraid, at least in the public arena of lie, and in the athletic contests was a matchless champion." This brought down the house.

Mr. Gray showed that he possessed none of the timidness of the typical "hen-pecked" husband, for he walked forward boldly on the stage to receive his gold basketball.

Mr. Quirmbah's appearance aroused whispers of "What-a-Man" as he strutted forward. He is the darling of the feminine sex, the girls' popular ideal of a basketball player. His flaming red hair was no redder than his countenance as he stood erect to have his trophy pinned to his noble chest.

Mr. Hackley is the auto doctor. As soon as he saw his gold ball he wanted to take it apart to look at the machinery. When he was informed by Mr. Ferguson that it had no machinery, he immediately went into a conference with himself to see if it wasn't possible to install one. Being very mechanically minded, he soon had his gold ball racing around the platform.

The students enjoyed the skit. It was a fine assembly. We had never seen the principal and faculty in this role before.

(By LEO FLANAGAN)

On last Friday evening at the high school, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson gave the football squad a dinner as an expression of their interest in football and their appreciation of the good team work of the boys. The question of the kind of dinner the fellows would like had been put up to them through Coach Biaggini, and they had voted "Jiggs" unanimously. The menu consisted of delicious corned beef and cabbage, potatoes, parker house rolls and butter, cranberry jelly, apple pie a la mode, and coffee.

There were hungry looks on the faces of the boys as they filed down the stairs to the domestic science department. But soon the expression changed.

The dinner began with Burns' Scotch blessing, said by Mr. Ferguson:

"Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some wad eat that want it;
Bue we hae meat and we can eat,
So let the Lord be thankit."

Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Hackley, and Mrs. McIsaacs were the chefs, and from the standpoint of the boys "what chefs." Coach Biaggini and Mr. Hackley and Mr. Ferguson were the waiters, and they didn't drop a dish.

After the dinner Mr. Ferguson acted as toastmaster, and called on each of the board members and faculty present to speak.

Mr. Bentley said he appreciated being among those invited, and told of his interest in football. Mr. Gehringer was presented as a man of action but few words. Superintendent Crane thanked the Fergusons for the wonderful dinner and told of the old-time football game he used to play. Incidentally, he played center, the same position Captain Auggie Gaggero plays.

Mr. Hackley spoke on the basketball game the faculty had with the one hundred ten team of the school, and said that before the faculty team would accept any challenge for more games a gymnasium would have to be built so that the faculty could show their real class. Mr. Biaggini spoke enthusiastically on Jefferson's need for a gymnasium.

Ex-Captain Leo Flanagan thanked the Fergusons for the dinner, and spoke on the subject of a Block "J" Club which is being formed in the school. Captain Auggie Gaggero thanked Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson for the dinner, and promised that next year's team would be a good one.

Mrs. Ferguson was called for and said that she had more enjoyment in cooking for the boys than she could express in words.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson are the biggest boosters of football in the school and would rather watch Jefferson's team play than Stanford's.

The program closed with a Big Six for Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson, led by Leo Flanagan.

As we understand it, our former allies would just as soon receive their reparations from Uncle Sam as from Germany.

"CYRANO DE BERGERAC" AT GEARY THEATRE NEXT WEEK

Hail to the classic drama. This jazz-mad age, reflected in equally flambouant plays, can still be stirred by the sweeping passages and swashbuckling heroes of twenty-five years ago. So sure of this fact are Messrs. Belasco and Curran, premier coast producers, that they are making a great production of Edmond Rostand's classic romantic drama, "Cyrano de Bergerac," and offering Richard Bennett, the star in the title role, and Kay Johnson as his leading woman. In four acts, with many scenes, requiring the presence of a hundred players on the stage, here is stage fare that should warm the heart of every playgoer. Mr. Bennett will open a limited engagement in "Cyrano" at the Geary Theatre, San Francisco, on Monday evening, February 8.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" is definitely a one-part play, dominated by the personality of a man who combines the qualities of D'Artagnan with Don Quixote. Rostand's hero is so played by Mr. Bennett that he is made perfectly believable. Cyrano is too good to be true in this day of selfish materialism, but while you are watching Mr. Bennett defy the world and strut, and brag, and fight through four acts of the play, you will forget the present and live again in the glorious days of this mad Gascon poet and lover.

It would be quite futile to present "Cyrano" without a glamorous production and a fine cast of supporting player for the star. Belasco and Curran, realizing this, have made the most lavish presentation of their career and chosen Mr. Bennett's surrounding players with the greatest care. Kay Johnson, whose fine characterization of Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" will never be forgotten, has the role of Roxanne, the role by the way that started Bernhardt and Anglin on their climb to stellar heights. Others in the cast are Albert Gran, Robert Newton, Crauford Kent, John Alexander, Alma Powell and Frederick Pymm.

A scientist declares that intelligent people think 20 times as fast as they write. And many write 20 times as much as is warranted by what they have to say.

Where is this

OLD PAPER MONEY?

Hidden away—in sugar bowls, boxes, mattresses, perhaps—is nearly 600 million dollars in old, large size currency.

It has not passed through the banks, or it would have been replaced by the new, small size paper money, introduced two years ago.

Think of it! Six hundred millions—missing. Much of it exposed to fire and theft; all of it idle, earning nothing.

Deposited in your bank, surplus funds go to work—helping to create credit for building homes, industries, payrolls—earning interest for you.

Let us urge that you add regularly to your interest-bearing savings account. Or, if you wish to open a new account, we are sure you will appreciate the security and convenience offered by a nearby branch of this statewide Bank.

Today is Chrysler Day

FIRST SHOWING

OF NEW CHRYSLER CARS with FLOATING POWER

PATENTED AND FULLY PROTECTED

CHRYSLER announces four new Chrysler cars—a new Chrysler Six and three new Chrysler Eights—all with patented Floating Power!

That is the most important statement that could be made about a motor car—for Floating Power is the greatest engineering development of modern times.

Floating Power gives Chrysler performance a smoothness never before expected of a motor car. When driving at any speed, power tremor is absolutely wiped out of both frame and body.

The great flow of Chrysler power at all speeds is incredibly smooth and soft and silent.

Easiest Cars to Drive

In addition to Floating Power, the new Chrysler Automatic Clutch makes driving supremely simple. Nothing for your left foot to do but be comfortable. You don't have to touch the clutch pedal when starting from a standstill, or changing gears, or even when using reverse. Your left foot is perfectly idle; nothing to press; nothing to touch.

Gear-shifting really isn't gear-shifting, in the old sense, with Chrysler's new Silent Gear Selector. When you release the accelerator, you move the lever freely into place in any direction, at any car speed, with no more effort than moving a lead pencil. Because—when you move the lever to select a higher or a lower speed, the transmission gears are not revolving. They are at rest, disconnected from the engine by the Automatic Clutch, and disconnected from the rear wheels by the entirely separate Free Wheeling unit behind the transmission.

You may, of course, lock out both the Automatic Clutch and the Free Wheeling unit, and instantly return to conventional driving at any time or speed by simply pulling out a button on the dash.

PLUS

AUTOMATIC CLUTCH
SILENT GEAR SELECTOR
FREE WHEELING
HYDRAULIC BRAKES
ALL-STEEL BODY
OILITE SQUEAK-PROOF SPRINGS
DOUBLE-DROP GIRDER-TRUSS FRAME

Finer, Safer Brakes

A definite new advantage has been added to Chrysler's self-equalizing Hydraulic Brakes in the form of new Centrifuse brake drums. A steel drum with cast-iron lining—permanently fused together. Under all conditions, Chrysler brakes last longer, remain cooler, retain uniform efficiency and give a quicker, "softer" and more positive action. A development that adds safety at faster speeds.

Chrysler steel bodies are All-Steel construction—rigidly reinforced and welded into one piece—the kind of construction that gives you the safety you should have and should demand. Adding still further to your protection and comfort is a new Double-Drop Girder-Truss Frame of tremendous strength and rigidity.

Good-bye All Spring Squeaks

New patented Oilite Squeak-Proof Springs on all three of the new Eights have the great advantages of never squeaking, and never needing lubrication.

Besides all of these outstanding superiorities, Chrysler retains the following important basic features—pioneered or popularized by Chrysler and features of Chrysler cars for years: In the Eights, a 4-speed transmission with internal Dual High Gears; in the Six, a Silent-Second Easy-Shift Transmission; all have the high-compression engine; full force-feed lubrication; ventilated crankcase; aluminum alloy Invar Strut pistons; counterweighted crankshaft; modern fuel system with fuel pump; oil filter; air cleaner and intake silencer; noiseless spring shackles; cowl ventilators; small base wheels and large tires; adjustable front seat; interior sun visors; indirectly lighted instrument panel; treadle-type accelerator—and many others.

Very Low—Very Smart

All of the new Chryslers are noticeably low, smart and fleet in appearance. The bodies are larger and roomier, with greatly increased luxury in design, finish and appointments.

More powerful cars than ever. Faster than ever. If you like real speed, Chrysler has it. You may never care to drive 75—85—90 miles an hour, but the great power that makes these speeds possible makes Chrysler performance at any speed you choose to drive, the most enjoyable performance under the sun.

Drive one of these new Chryslers and learn what a truly modern car it is.

A new Chrysler Six, five body models, $885 to $935 (Automatic Clutch and Oilite Squeak-Proof Springs on all Sixes at slight extra cost); a new Chrysler Eight, four body models, $1435 to $1495; a new Chrysler Imperial Eight, two body models, $1925 to $1945; a new Chrysler Imperial Custom Eight, six body models, $2895 to $3595. All prices f. o. b. factory. Duplate Safety Plate Glass obtainable on all models at slight extra cost.

OTHER DAY PESSIMISTS

The office of Commissioner of Labor was established in 1885, and a year later in his first annual report, the Commissioner said:

"The rapid development and adoption of machinery have brought what is commonly called over-production, so that machinery and over-production are two causes so closely allied that it is quite difficult to distinguish the one without taking the other into consideration.

"This full supply of economic tools to meet the wants of nearly all branches of commerce and industry is the most important factor in the present industrial depression."

Without discussing the situation that then existed in other countries as well as our own, the Commissioner concluded with the statement: "The day of large profits is probably past."

So there was a depression in 1886, and officials whose business it was to study conditions were so much impressed by it that they thought nobody would ever make much money any more.

The lesson of this Commissioner's bad guess to our day and generation is too obvious to need comment.

French wine makers want a law making the drinking of wine with restaurant meals compulsory. And we suppose drys over there will spring that old "personal liberty" wheeze.

General Dawes says the idea of his running for President is d—d nonsense. But politicians have been known to indulge in that sort of thing.

A statistical shark figures that Americans drink 75,000 cups of coffee every second. And no telling how many saucers.

THE MAN—NOT HIS CAR

According to a brief article in the Safe Driver, about 90 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents can be charged to three things: Bad judgment, carelessness, stupidity. In a recent study of over a million motor accidents, it was found that the entire share of fatal accidents attributable to defects in the car amounted to only about 11 per cent, while for non-fatal accidents the car was defective in but 5 per cent of the cases.

In other words, nine out of ten are the fault of the man who drives the car, and not the car itself. As Dr. Miller McClintock, of Harvard, has phrased it, the remedy is to convince man that he must live up to his car. When he reaches as high a degree of perfection in his driving as the modern automobile represents, deaths on the streets and highways will be due for a 90 per cent drop.

The modern highway is often congested. Traffic moves fast. There is no time for absent-mindedness, for a single instant of distraction from the job at hand. Every one who drives an automobile should keep in the front of his mind the trinity of destruction: Bad judgment, carelessness, stupidity.

EVOLUTION TRIAL IN 1884

Few persons probably know or remember that in 1884 a famous "evolution trial" took place in the United States, in which Rev. James Woodrow, a Southern educator, was defendant. Such is the case, however, and the trial attracted almost as much attention in educational and theological circles as the more recent trial of Prof Scopes in Tennessee.

Dr. Woodrow was at the time a professor in the South Carolina College and Theological Seminary at Columbia, a Presbyterian school, where he gave courses in natural science as related to divine revelation.

In the course of his lectures it developed that Dr. Woodrow presented the Darwinian doctrine of evolution in such a manner as to confilct with orthodox teachings supported by the Book of Genesis, so the fundamentalists of that day had him tried and convicted of heresy.

His nephew, Woodrow Wilson, who later became president of the Princeton University and twice President of the United States, was indignant over the result of the trial, as were the leading scientific men of the country.

The conviction was reversed later by the higher Presbyterian authorities, so Dr. Woodrow was reinstated and afterward served as president of the State College until his retirement in 1897. He died in 1907.

THE ROGERS RAILROAD

Will Rogers is known the world over as a comedian, but few know that he was once a railroad magnate. A story to that effect is told, however, and for all we know it may be true.

It is said that in the early days of Claremore, Will's home town in Oklahoma, that flourishing village was five miles from a railroad. Will and his brothers built a branch railroad to connect Claremore with the main line, also got up some nifty letterheads, on which the names of the brothers were listed as high officials of the road. They also had some good-looking courtesy passes printed, which they freely exchanged with officials of other railroads. By this means they were enabled to do quite a bit of traveling without transportation expense.

When one inquisitive railroad president took it upon himself to investigate the status of the Rogers line, and found that it was only five miles long, he wrote to protest that it was not fair to exchange passes with such an insignificant road.

Will Rogers replied by admitting that the Rogers line was not very long in length, but it was "as wide as anybody's old railroad."

CAMPAIGN STRAWS

Preliminary polls designed to get the drift of political sentiment have begun to appear, and some results have been given out, which we pass on for whatever they may be worth.

A poll of 582 newspaper editors by Publishers' Service Magazine showed leading candidates for the Presidential nomination to stand as follows: Republicans—Hoover, 320; Coolidge, 19; Dawes, 10. Democrats—Roosevelt, 154; Bake, 132; Ritchie, 22; Smith, 12.

Seventy representative newspapers polled by the Literary Digest were asked which propective candidates were most talked about by their readers. Those mentioned twenty-five times or more were: Republicans—Hoover, 70; Coolidge, 43; Borah, 31; Johnson, 28; Pinchot, 26; Dawes, 25. Democrats—Roosevelt, 70; Baker, 69; Ritchie, 63; Smith, 56; Young, 35; Murray, 30.

Those having charge of the poll declare that at the present time the renomination of President Hoover seems assured, but there will be some lively jockeying among the Democratic aspirants between now and the June convention.

Anyway that contract bridge tournament proved that good showmanship and press agentry can keep anything on the front page.

THE COLMA BOYS' CLUB

There was a good attendance at the Colma Boys' Club meeting last Wednseday evening, at the Colma Community Center on Dunk street. Considering the cold and stormy weather, the attendance during the month of January was excellent. There is but one group within the club. At present that is the Junior group. As the membership increases, groups according to the age and abilities of the boys will be formed.

The committee in charge feels that the community is very fortunate to have Mr. Mathews as director of the Colma Boys' Club. Mr. Mathews is the physical and manual training insturctor of Jefferson school district, and is unusually qualified for this kind of work.

Many of the boys who belonged to the Senior group last year have joined the Colma Merchants' baseball club. This is a separate organization and is in no way connected with the Colma Boys' Club, meeting at the Community Center on Dunk street.

MOTORISTS OF STATE PAY IMMENSE SUM

A huge $6,668,062 melon—the California motorists' money paid to the state in license fees during 1931—was cut today by the Department of Motor Vehicles and distributed to the state highway authorities and the counties to be returned to the motorists in tthe form of good roads.

One-half of the money, or $3,334,031, went to the Division of Highways of the Department of Public Works to be spent directly by that body on its maintenance program. The other half was distributed to the counties on the basis of motor vehicle registrations, every county in tthe state receiving a share.

Russell Bevans, registrar of the department, said the apportionment would provide the means of keeping hundreds of men employed for another year, thus materially relieving the unemployment problem, in line with the program of Governor Rolph.

The division to the counties was made on a total fee paid registration of 2,107,275 motor vehicles, the largest in the state's history.

Los Angeles county, with its huge registration of 861,004 vehicles, will receive the lion's share of the money, drawing a total of $1,362,240. San Francisco will receive $249,657. San Mateo county will receive $43,716.

There are laws enough to make traffic safe, if they were only enforced, says a recent writer, who cites the following: Iowa's law against riding on Sunday faster than a horse can walk; ten days' notice of automobile trips, posted along roads to be traversed, in Tennessee; Lake Forest, Illinois, ordinance requiring that a man on a bicycle must precede each automobile; St. Paul ordinance providing that an autoist must stop and help the driver of a horse that appears frightened.

Another paradox is that liquor straight makes a fellow walk crooked.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS, COUNTY OF SAN MATEO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA.

By E. B. HINMAN, Clerk.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

That many people are becoming somewhat dazed over this much advertised world economic condition. Instead of being all humility in their confession that they do not understand it, they are asking, "Who does understand it, anyway?" They are even asserting that nobody understands it.

So while big business men and members of different governments are trying to find out what it is all about and the cure for it, there are people everywhere who would like to barter something they have in exchange for something they need that somebody else has. There is a rich variety of things that could be exchanged to the satisfaction of all, and the proper channels to use are the classified columns of the newspapers.

Classified ads are busy little things. To secure a place to board, a house to rent, or a furnished room, read the classified ads.

If you want to find opportunities for buying, selling, or exchanging, use the want ads. You will always find them a ready reference for anything you may want. They are the quick, efficient, sure way of getting you in touch with what you need.

You will find good buys and trades in the want ads. They are constantly performing many valuable missions which are to the advantage of all.

Everybody should get the habit of using the want ads. They will save time, trouble and money.

ECONOMIC LEAGUE VOTE

Results of a referendum vote on several public questions by members of the national council of the National Economic League, a non-partisan body composed of leaders in various walks of life, have just been announced. There were 1,607 votes cast, the percentage in favor of the various proposals being as follows:

For cancelling German reparations and international war debts, only 14 per cent voted "yes." For reducing them, 32 per cent. For futher postponing payment, 41 per cent.

For reducing the existing tariff schedules, 75 per cent. For raising them, 3 per cent. For keeping them as they are, 22 per cent.

For the adoption of a more positive policy by Federal Reserve and central banks for preventing excessive inflation and deflation, 91 per cent. For their utilizing the power of gold and credit to lessen the fluctuation of production and unemployment, 84 per cent.

For the establishment of a National Economic Advisory Council, 83 per cent. But the vote for establishing sunch a council under government auspices was only 25 per cent.

For amending the anti-trust laws so as to permit business concerns to enter into contracts for the purpose of equalizing production and consumption, but under certain government restrictions, 85 per cent voted "Yes."

While the vote on the above proposals were not numerically large, it is believed that it represents an important cross-section of public opinion. If so, it shows an overwhelming majority against cancellation of reparations and war debts; a three to one vote in favor of lowered tariff schedules; an almost unanimous vote for a firmer banking policy with respect to speculation, and a more than five to one vote in favor of liberalizing the anti-trust laws.

WEBSTER ON COMMUNISM

The name communism probably is less than one hundred years old, but the thing represented by the name has been existence, even here in the United States, longer ago than that. Here is an extract from an address before the United States Senate by Daniel Webster more than a century ago and it reads as if it might have been written yesterday:

"There are persons who constantly clamor. They complain of oppression, speculation, and the pernicious influence of accumulated wealth. They cry out loudly against all banks and corporations, and all the means by which small capitals become united, in order to produce important and beneficial results. They carry on a mad hostility against all established institutions. They would choke up the fountains of industry, and dry all its streams.

"In a country of unbounded liberty, they clamor against oppression. In a country of perfect equality, they would move heaven and earth against privilege and monopoly. In a country where property is more equally divided than anywhere else, they rend the air with the shouting of agrarian doctrines.

"In a country where the wages of labor are high beyond all parallel, and where lands aare cehap, and the means of living low, they would teach the laborer that he is but an oppressed slave.

"What can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder, the diffusion of corrupt principles, and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society."

IMPROVING RURAL ROADS

We are learning that poor roads, impassable during part of each year, are one of the farmer's greatest problems. Those who live in cities, from which fine paved highways stretch in all directions, probably have a difficult time understanding his predicament. But if they can imagine themselves living on an isolated farm, without means for going to town, or for receiving medical aid or fire-fighting service in case of need, they will have an inkling into the plight of millions of American farm families.

The good roads movement must be extended into rural districts—and the amount of traffic must not be the major consideration. Modern construction methods have made possible the building of good asphaltic surfaced roads, passable and safe under all conditions, at an extremely low cost. In any sound consideration of permanent and substantial "farm relief," the problem of good roads for fast, economical transportation of persons and goods, should play an important part.

LEGION TO OPEN WAR ON UNEMPLOYMENT

The first gun in the American Legion's war against unemployment and the causes of depression in the West will be fired in San Francisco on Tuesday, February 9, at a Pacific regional meeting of the organization's National Employment Commission. The meeting will be held at the Hotel St. Francis, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing through the day.

Invitations are being extended to outstanding leaders of finance, labor, industry and transportation in the six western states to attend the meeting and co-operate with the Legion in relieving unemployment conditions.

Harold L. Plummer, national vice-commander of the Legion, and state commanders and adjutants from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Utah, California and Arizona will be present. John R. Quinn, of Los Angeles, past national commander of the Legion, will preside.

"Employment of one million unemployed in the next two months is the goal of the American Legion," said Van Hogan, California commander, in making the announcement of the regional meeting. "The program of the Legion is nation-wide in scope, and is not only confined to veterans but to every citizen out of work. Already two regional meetings have been held in eastern territory and the results have been most gratifying.

"An increase of 10 per cent in employeees by every employer is one of the principal objectives of the Legion's drive. Many corporations can well afford this increase out of their surplus and others with diminished surpluses or frozen credit can make a ten per cent increase in the number of men actually employed by a spread of work through the six hour day with six hour pay.

"The American Federation of Labor, the Association of National Advertisers, religious leaders and hundreds of American orianizations and businesses are backing the Legion's program to turn a million idle workers into wage earners, for they know that it is the first step in restoring public confidence, the resumption of normal buying, and a consequent quickening of all branches of trade and industry. This is the biggest job the Legion has ever tackled, and it is being attacked with the same vigor as its members, when in the service, attacked the German lines."

BOARD APPROVES JAIL SITE PERMIT

The San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday granted San Francisco a permit to build a jail on the Sneath ranch, west of Skyline boulevard and opposite San Bruno. The motion was presented by Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, South San Francisco, and seconded by Chairman Manuel Francis, Half Moon Bay. Four members of the board voted for the jail site, Miss Rosalie M. Brown, San Mateo supervisor, being the only one opposed.

Before the vote was taken Supervisor John W. Poole, Redwood City, said that, personally, he was opposed to the location of a jail in the county, but added that if San Mateo county labor was assured of a "break" on the construction work he would vote for it. Joseph J. Phillips, San Francisco's right-of-way agent, promised Poole that the country would receive fair consideration in the construction work.

It was announced that preliminary survey on the jail proposition would begin at once and that actual construction would start in about two months.

Max J. Leonard, horticultural commisssioner of Del Norte county, was named by the supervisors to be horticultural commissioner of San Mateo county, filling the place vacated by the death of A. W. Tate. He will take over his duties February 10.

The San Mateo county Chamber of Commerce was instructed to contact those in charge of the construction of Sunnyvale air base, with the view of having some of this county's unemployed secure jobs there. It was pointed out that the county had agreed to contribute to the cost of purchasing the site and should receive consideration in the matter of employment.

The board passed a resolution asking the State Highway Commission to make a survey of the proposed San Joaquin-to-the-Sea highway, with the view of including the project in the state program of secondary roads. The Chambers of Commerce in San Mateo, Burlingame and Half Moon Bay were urged to get behind the project.

P. G. & E. ADDING TO SERVICE AT SEARSVILLE

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has approved orders for an expenditure of $19,300 for additional power facilities in the vicinity of Searsville Lake.

According to W. T. Kellogg, district manager, the territory adjacent to the lake has been served from lines extending from the Redwood City substation. Growth and development of the territory, with increasing demands for electric energy, necessitate the building of a new substation and the rearrangement of power lines to serve consumers in that section.

PRECEDING EVENTS

Joe Barry, country youth in New York, ekes out a living as caretaker in a poor rooming house and accordion player in Louie Bertolini's restaurant. Lured by the open country, he spends a night in the fields, neglecting his duties. Next day Bertolini discharges him. A frequent visitor to Bertolini's offers him $10,000 to impersonate a "bootlegger" in trouble. It means a penitentiary sentence for Joe, and he hesitates. The man, "Martin," gives him $1,000 "on account." Next day Joe deposits $800 in country banks, giving his name as Joseph Bradley. A circus attracts him. Outside a tent he sees an accordion and is tempted to play it. A girl, Sue Dayton, niece of the owner, who admires the music, urges him to take a position with the circus. Joe says he must first return to New York "on business." He has decided to refuse "Martin's" offer. In his room four men accost him. Bewildered, Joe sees the men, who are detectives, find large amounts of money, a machine gun, and two revolvers. Next day, at the police station, he learns the man he had known as "Martin" was an impostor.

"That'll be all, Mr. Martin. Sorry to have disturbed you."

The distinguished man departed. Pete Maxwell pulled up a chair.

"Now listen, sport, there isn't any sense in you trying to beat this rap with a lot of clown stuff. You've got too much to explain. All that money in your pockets; that water-soaked suit and those shoes with mud on them."

Joe's tongue licked quickly at dry lips.

"I don't know anything about the money. But about those clothes. I had them on day before yesterday and got caught in the rain."

"Where?"

"Up by Newburgh, near a little town called Orr's Mills."

Pete Maxwell glanced hastily toward the captain. The three other detectives shuffled into an attitude of attention, their arms on the table.

"Go right ahead," said Pete, then interrupted at almost the first sentence. "What did you go up there for?"

Joe Barry shifted; the first bubbles of a slow hate were beginning to rise.

"I'm trying to tell—but you won't listen!"

"We haven't missed a trick. Hop to it."

Joe Barry began his recital again, only to meet with more interruptions, cross-statements between the various men, returns to the beginning of his story. But at last they let him finish. Then Pete straightened, and stretched, pressing his hands wide at the sides of his chest.

"Bridge player, eh sport?" he asked.

"No."

"You believe in leading trumps in a pinch though. Now we'll play a few. Mind pushing the button, Captain?"

The captain complied and gave a command to the officer who responded to the signal. Out he went, to almost immediately re-enter with four other persons. Joe was ordered to his feet. They all looked at him carefully. Then, bewildered, he heard himself identified, first by a farmer who swore him to be a man who had come to his door at midnight, seeking a place to sleep, then by the two others, gawking apple knockers, who proclaimed him the [illegible] whom the had ursued on his exit from a haystack. Cloudiness again assaulted Joe's mind. He had told all this, as a means to his own release. Then, by police necromancy, his witness had appeared, not to help him, but to damn him. Joe's dark, tired eyes stared stupidly, from one to the other. Deep within his brain, something began to caution him to tighten his tongue, to say nothing more, lest every word he uttered should be used for his own condemnation. Then the three were led out again, only a stocky man remaining.

"How about him, sheriff?" asked the captain.

"I guess he'll do. The boys at the filling station in Newburgh weren't any too particular, of course. But from the general description of the two that were on the truck, this one seems to match up with the fellow who got away. Dark hair, medium sized—"

"Lots of people are dark and medium sized." Joe half rose with a final burst of desperate appeal. "Besides, I wasn't on any truck. If you'll let me tell my story—"

"We'd be delighted if you would, sport," said the captain caustically. "But you seem to think you're dealing with a bunch of children."

Again Joe Barry was led back to his cell, pondering dully. Hate was in his heart; he had been duped, tricked, his honest story twisted into a confession of a crime, the true extent of which he did not know. But his hatred, strangely enough, was clarified sufficiently to exempt these men who turned this night to one of terror. They were merely instruments; Joe all but forgot them in the searing memory of the personality who had engineered this. Martin!

He knew no other name for him.

Alone in his cell, bent on the slatted bunk, black hair stringing over his sweat-caked fingers as he bent his head to his hands, Joe Barry strove to tear the tangled events of the last two days apart and weld them anew into something that would possess perspective.

Something had happened near Orr's Mills, which had to do with that overturned truck, something with which this man Martin had been connected. Now Joe remembered the careful questioning which had been carried on in the car under the guise of mere casual interest; the extraction of incidents, where Joe had been, whom he had seen, what he had done, what he knew about that wrecked truck; in fact, his every action from the time he had left New York until he had returned. Out of that, Barry saw now, a man had gained the knowledge that here was some one who had been near the scene of a crime and whose every action, instead of proving an alibi for him, would aid to conviction. Martin must have wanted such a person—to take the place of a guilty man. So he had engineered an acceptance of a proposition to go to prison, to so conduct one's actions as to cause suspicion. But Joe knew now that these suspicions were not merely the ones which Martin had designated. That machine gun, those two automatics and that money which Pete Maxwell had extracted from the pocket of his old clothing were evidence enough of serious things impending.

Joe shuddered from the possible charge which rose constantly before him. The hours passed. Then the turnkey came in to take him to the patrol that was to conduct him, with other prisoners, to police headquarters for the morning "line-up."

When the patrol stopped on Center street, Joe hardly noticed his surroundings. Another place of confinement, another stopping place in this shifting journey to a market place of human frailties.

He entered the building, with the other scuffling occupants of the patrol. A man in uniform sat in a sort of enclosed throne in the big rotunda; it might have been an office building information desk. Then came an office with the methodical taking of names. After that a hallway, flanked by office doors with the names of interminable bureaus upon them; after that, the line dived into a narrow stairway, under guard. Then they took his name again, in a little cage, where another fat man fondled various keys from a rack which hung above his desk. Once more, he was in a cell, noticing vaguely that he possessed a mate, and staring as vaguely about him.

More hours went by. Then the turnkey came and got him; Pete Maxwell was waiting in the grilled cage outside the holdover proper, to take him to the photographer's.

The endless detail, the constant shifting, moving about, from cage to cage, handcuff to handcuff. Then Maxwell opened a door and put Joe Barry into still another cage, a big one this time, with some twenty other men, a cage which reached nearly to the ceiling, and opening upon a wide room, fitted mostly with tables and photographic apparatus.

Inside the cage, some men sat, some paced, up and down, up and down, hands behind them, faces to the floor. At first there were only a few, then others came from the benches, and still more; pacing, turning swiftly and moving back again.

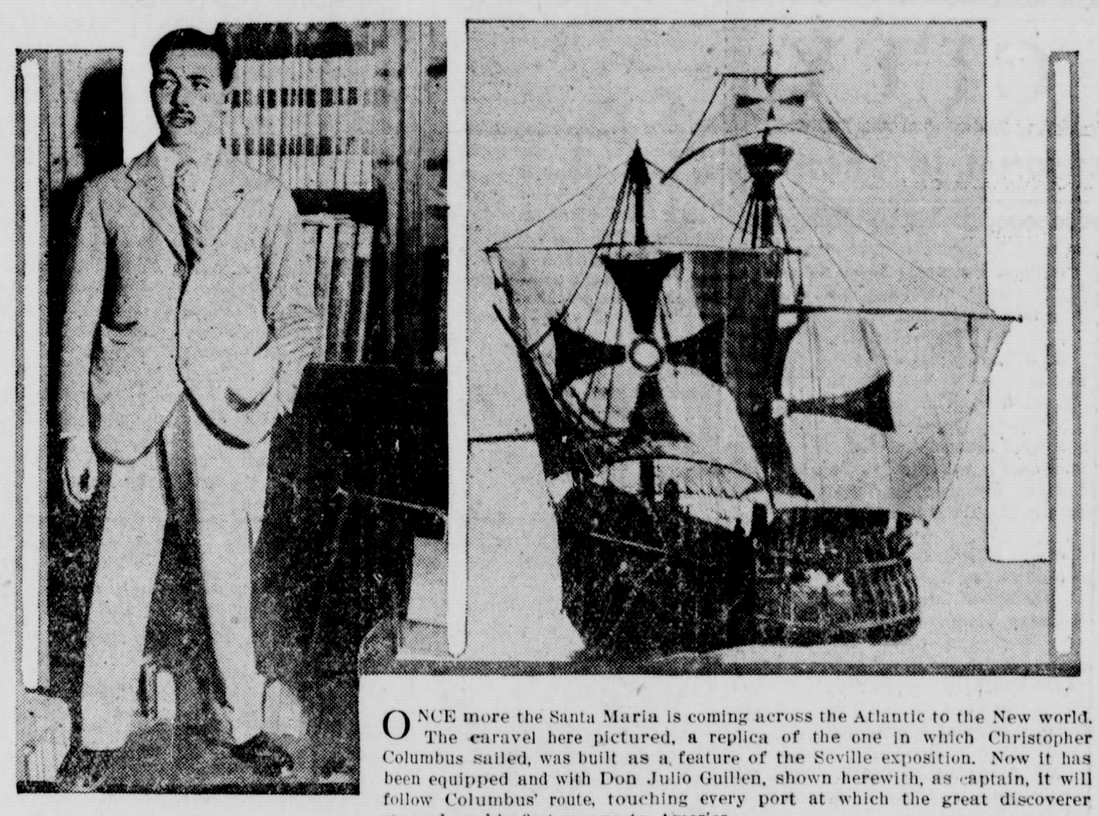
Old Frankfurt

Few cities with the trend of modern progress driving them so hard can have preserved so completely the ancient streets and buildings of their old beginnings as has Frankfurt in Germany. Frankfurt has kept almost intact the Fourteenth-century houses, guild houses, chapels and cloisters much as they were built. Round the cathedral whole blocks of old buildings have been swept away, leaving that fine old structure unencumbered, but the perfect square of the "Romerberg" remains.

Untroubled Sleep

The number of hours which we sleep is not so important, according to one expert, as seeing that our sleep is untroubled.

Another Santa Maria Is Coming to America



ONCE more the Santa Maria is coming across the Atlantic to the New world. The caravel here pictured, a replica of the one in which Christopher Columbus sailed, was built as a feature of the Seville exposition. Now it has been equipped and with Don Julio Guillen, shown herewith, as captain, it will follow Columbus' route, touching every port at which the great discoverer stopped on his first voyage to America.

OUR BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER IS IN DESPAIR

NEVER had Peter Rabbit felt greater despair in his heart than when he found who was following his tracks through the Green Forest. He didn't know where to go or what to do. If only it were anyone but Shadow the Weasel! From Reddy Fox or Old Mar Coyote or Hooty the Owl he could find safety in a bramble-tangle or a hollow log. But there was nowhere that he could go that Shadow the Weasel could not follow. When the ground was not frozen he had fooled Shadow by running in wet places where the ground was swampy and the water destroyed his scent, but now these places were frozen hard. Even the Laughing Brook was frozen over.

"Oh, dear!" sobbed Peter. "He'll get me this time. He surely will, I might just as well give up right now. It isn't the least use in the world to run. He can run as long as I can. I can't move without leaving tracks. Oh, how I hate this snow!"

Peter said this last in a very bitter tone, quite forgetting that it was the snow which had given him warning. If he had stopped to think a minute he would have remembered that Shadow can follow tracks on bare ground by means of his wonderful nose quite as easily as he could follow those tracks in the snow, and that if there had been no snow Peter wouldn't have seen Shadow's own tracks and so would have been caught before he had the least idea that he was being followed.

Peter was too frightened to run and he was too frightened to sit still. Anyway, that is the way he felt. Every second that he sat there was bringing Shadow nearer. With terrible fear in his eyes Peter stared back the way he had come. Then he made up his mind. "He'll not catch me without as long a run as I can give him," muttered Peter, and made a long jump sideways. Then away he went through the Green Forest, lipperty-lipperty-lip, lipperty-lipperty-lip, as fast as he could go. Never had he made longer jumps. Every little while he made a flying jump to one side, sometimes to the right and sometimes to the left. This was to make Shadow stop and hunt for his tracks. Once, after a long run straight away, he turned and hurried back in the direction from which he had just come, not in his own tracks, of course, but off to one side. Then he hid under a snow-covered bush and watched. His heart thumped dreadfully as he squatted there watching. After a little he saw a slim white form go bounding past. It was Shadow! He hadn't given up the chase.

Peter waited only until Shadow was out of sight, and then with a little hopeless sob he started on again. He had seen that Shadow was running easily, quite as if he enjoyed the chase. Peter himself was beginning to grow tired and to get out of breath. He thought of the dear Old Briar Patch. He couldn't go there, for Mrs. Peter was there. How he did wish he had heeded her and not come over to the Green Forest! But it was too late for regrets. There was nothing to do but keep on running. So Peter ran, lipperty-lipperty-lip, lipperty-lipperty-lip, but his jumps were shorter now. And somewhere behind him he knew that Shadow was drawing nearer and nearer, running with long bounds that didn't seem to tire him at all.

DISHES FROM WHEY

IN THE early days of our country when milk was not as plentiful as it is today, whey was used for drinks, added to bread and used by the beauty specialists as a skin whitener. All these accomplishments are still available, if you have the whey.

Whey may be prepared from commercial rennet or junket, or it may be obtained from the natural souring of milk. Whey is the water left when the curds of milk are formed. It has much nutriment in it—salts, mineral matters and sugar. In many hospitals, babies who cannot take milk will grow and flourish on whey when properly prepared.

Try a few of these whey dishes, they will be enjoyed:

Whey Sherbet.

Take one quart of whey, the juice of one lemon, one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water, one and one-fourth cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of crushed pineapple or cherries, berries or orange juice. Mix and freeze as usual, adding the fruit when the mixture is partly frozen.

When used in bread making, instead of water or milk, scald it always to insure the bread from souring.

Whey should be scalded if kept for a day or two, then it may be served in any way desired.

Whey Pie.

Take two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one cupful of whey, one lemon and grated rind, a bit of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter and two well beaten eggs. Mix and bake as a custard in one crust. Or cook and pour into a baked shell, using the egg whites for a meringue.

Whey Salad Dressing.

Take one cupful of whey, one-fourth cupful of vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one-eighth teaspoonful of turmeric, three tablespoonfuls of flour, one-fourth cupful of sugar, and a dash of cayenne. Heat the whey, and the dry ingredients well mixed, then add the butter and cook until smooth. A bit of mustard may be added if desired and one egg substituted for the flour.

THEY CALL IT VIRTUE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THEY call it virtue—to set teeth,
Square shoulders, wear a smile,
When grief is gnawing underneath,
Some sorrow all the while.
They call it virtue—not to speak,
Ask comfort, or complain,
Yes, even when the heart grows weak
With weariness or pain.

They call it virtue—yet I doubt
If we need doubt so much
The brotherhood of those about
We must not tell or touch.
They call it virtue—thus to bear
Our burdens all alone,
And yet I doubt if none would care,
If other hearts are stone.

They call it virtue—yet I know
The world is much more kind,
Is quick its fellowship to show
To burdened heart or mind.
They call it virtue—it may be
A selfishness, a sin,
To doubt all human sympathy,
And hide the hurt within.

Who Will Raise It?

Prof.: "The window should be opened. (Louder.) Mr. Jones, will you open it?"

Jones (waking up): "I'll open it for four bits."

How Cruel of Her

Cherrie: "Would you say 'yes' if I proposed?"

Thelma: "Sure I would, if you proposed going to a movie."

Do you keep your house in good repair? Nothing deteriorates faster than a neglected house. It's like a bad tooth. Every time the least little break is left unmended, it brings trouble.

A Cutting Remark

And then there's the Scotchman who accidentally spilled some iodine. To keep it from going to waste he had to cut his finger.

Better Not

She: "Let's knot."

Ring us up when you need Building Material.

Culture

"I hear your son's at college."

"Yep."

"How's he doing?"

"Oh, pretty good, I guess. He is taking three courses. I've just paid out ten dollars for Latin, ten dollars for Greek, and a hundred dollars for Scotch."

She: "Do you think it's unlucky to get married on Friday?"

He: "Of course! Why should Friday be an exception?"

You Know

The jury had been dead-locked for two days. The foreman of the jury came to the door and said to the bailiff:

"Send in eleven dinners and a bale of hay."

Yes, we sell Paints and Oils—the best.

"I don't mind having 'rings on my fingers,'" he said, as he limped from the dance, "but hang me if I can stand for 'belles on my toes.'"
